Disclaimer and explanation of the unique nature of our books

The Green Economics Institute is committed to inclusivity, diversity and real original dialogue and we walk the talk where others might fear to tread or find it too challenging. We therefore have authors from our global network from all over the world from all walks of life and we try to keep our editing to a minimum so that everyone's ideas are in their own words.

We do not impose academic English on our authors, many of whom are writing in a foreign language or for the first time. We prefer to hear authentic voices and to encourage everyone to to be heard.
